A WANTON CRIME.

Shot Down on a Public Highway The Wounded Man's Statement.

Last Wednesday between 12 and 1 o'clock P. M., one of the most unfortunate shooting scrapes occurred. Thomas Williams, the white bridge-watcherman shot and dangerously wounded John Oakley with an old-fashioned army pistol, 38 calibre.

WILLIAMS STATEMENT.

The published statements of the accused's side of the question is as follows: Williams says he was at his post of duty, which is on any part of the thoroughfare, when the colored man came along and asked him who was boss of the structure. Williams replied that he was.

Oakley retorted: "Well, you are not attending to your business, sir. I saw some buggies trotting across here."

The impudence of the man made Williams a little angry and he replied with some warmth: "It is none of your business what goes on here."

The watchman walked towards the Negro and, as he says, Oakley struck him. Williams, thinking the Negro was a better man physically than himself, ran to his house to get his pistol, and when he had secured it he saw that the Negro was nearly across the bridge.

He met Oakley before the latter reached the Manchester end and told him he was under arrest. Oakley said he would not be arrested, and advised Williams to go away and let him alone, which the watchman declined to do. He approached Oakley, who had a piece of wood in his hand. The watchman says he had his pistol in his left and his club in his right hand, and the Negro struck him with the piece of wood on his left, which caused the weapon to discharge twice.

The blow from the wood left a bad-looking skin-wound on the watchman's hand.

Williams says he hated to shoot the Negro, but after he had thrown the wood at him he approached nearer, and he (Williams) felt that he would have to shoot in self-defence, and when Oakley had gotten very, very near to him he fired.

Learning of the affair we proceeded to the Police Court. When the case was called, owing to the absence of important witnesses the case was continued until the next day when the question of bail would be argued. The accused is a spare built white man about five feet in height. His face has a dirty appearance, and his hair apparently matted reaches nearly to his coat collar and lays loosely about his face. He walks with a slight stoop.

He is said to be over sixty years of age.

THE WOUNDED MAN'S AGONY.

In company with lawyer Giles B. Jackson, we went to the residence of the injured man. He resides on Jay Street near Mechanicsville turnpike (Church Hill). The house in which he lives belongs to him. The parlor is handsomely furnished, and everything betokened a hard working man. His children—two of them own houses adjoining his.

As we entered the house Dr. R. F. Tancil the attending physician came down stairs. We were ushered in the sick room. There on the bed in great agony lay John Oakley.

He is of a light ginger-bread color, with slight mustache and goatee and apparently about 50 years of age. He observed us as we entered. Between his gasps as the agonizing pain racked him he gave the following account: "Was going across the Free bridge to the Manchester side to pick up my tools. Saw him looking, passed him, and he asked me what I was going. I told him I was going to attend to my business. He called me a damn black—of a—He then came up to me with his hands rolled up for a fight. I pushed him off and said, 'I've no time to bother with you. He struck me on the head and arm. I started to the Manchester side of the bridge. The white man called to his wife to bring him his pistol. She did so, and he shot at me three times, two of them missed me.'"

The wound was uncovered. There near the groin, but in the left side of the abdomen was the bullet-hole. On top of his head is a gash two inches long. It extends to the bone. Williams says that he was afraid Oakley would kill him but shows no signs of any serious injury.

Oakley's left wrist was also badly injured. It seems that this white man not only feloniously struck him but afterwards shot him, and, from the fact that this was done with intent to kill there can be no doubt. Oakley is tool-boss in the employ of the Electric Railway Co.

Charley Meredith, Esq., will appear for Williams. Commonwealth's Attorney Smith was on hand.

Counsel to assist the prosecution will probably be employed.

An Embarrassing Blunder.

We visited Lynchburg and were much chagrined to learn that our compositors had made our Danville correspondent say:

"Dr. J. W. Jackson and baby of Lynchburg, with Miss Molen of Washington are visiting A. Morton, Esq., 445 Monroe St."

The mistake will be readily understood when we inform the public that it should have read "Dr. J. W. Jackson and lady."

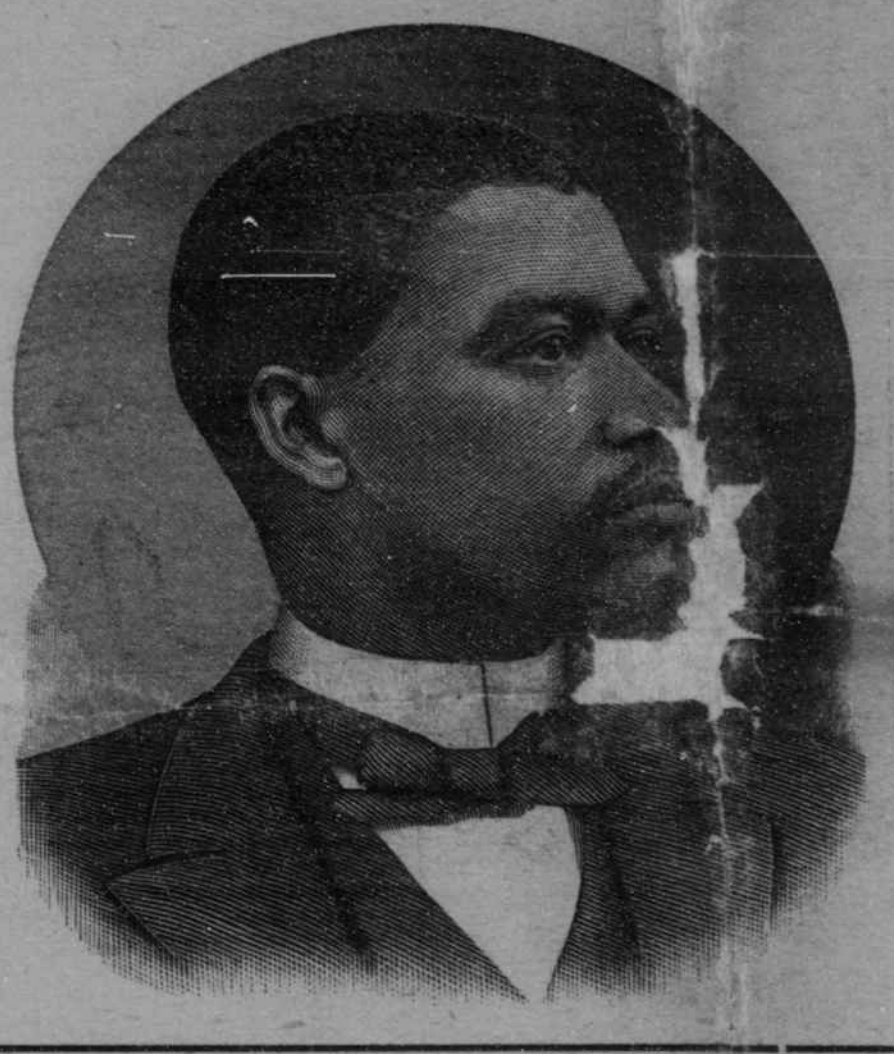

The Doctor has not been blessed with any such good fortune and we had to be profuse in apologies with solemn promises that such a mistake should never occur again.

JOHN MITCHELL, JR., EDITOR OF RICHMOND (VA.) PLANET.

[From Indianapolis (Ind.) FREEMAN.]

[From The Indianapolis (Ind.) Freeman. The only Illustrated Colored Paper Published in America.]

A JOURNALISTIC AJAX OF THE RACE.

A Man, Who, Conscious of His Own Strength of Manhood Dares to Hurl the Thunderbolts of Truth into the Ranks of the Wicked—Injustice a Target for His Unerring Aim.

THE FREEMAN has never presented its readers with the portrait of a distinguished man with a greater pleasure and delight than it does in presenting in this issue, that of John Mitchell, Jr., the talented editor of the Richmond, (Va.) PLANET. Mr. Mitchell is a young man, 27 years of age, but full of wisdom. In the earliest stages of his existence he manifested a zeal for the devotion of the race rarely found in our young men. As he has matured, this zeal has increased until to-day no stronger race man is known amongst us. His mind inclined to the artistic and would have, had its bent been given full play, achieved for him fame in the artistic world. The cultivation of such a talent however, would have taken him from an active life in the redressing of the wrongs inflicted upon his people; and so, in due course, Mr. Mitchell took up the weapon, proverbially deemed mightier than the sword, and like a rapier it has clashed unsparingly at the enemies of right. The influence that has impelled him onward, that has inspired his pen; that has given him courage is an intense love of his race. Nothing emanates from his brain that is not based on race pride. Clinging to no party, subserving no one interest save that of the oppressed, he throws the full force of heart and mind into every question that will affect one way or the other the welfare of his brethren. They are clear and penetrating, the head poised and proportioned auspiciously, shows to him who is an observer of human nature, that Mitchell was born for no activeness life. From his countenance shows forth a determination, a disposition to stand for the right amidst all. As a vigorous writer Mr. Mitchell is unexcelled, his arguments are convincing and though not altogether as fascinating in literary phraseology as some of his fellow tripudians, yet are readable and enjoyable. The very intensity of the man's feelings is seen in his writings; no tampering with the fanciful, no useless exercise of mental energy; no platitudes, no studied effort to display pedantry. In these matters John Mitchell stands preeminently wise for one of his age. To enter fully into a history of his life would be a task of pleasure, to show him to the aspiring young men of the race for their emulation, for their encouragement and appreciation, would be a delight—but we are unable to present a more detailed account of his very active and useful life than these few facts: In 1884 Mr. Mitchell began his duties as editor of the Richmond PLANET which at that time, was not as influential a paper as it is now. He took charge and soon made the PLANET the most outspoken of race papers. The policy of Mr. Mitchell in his paper has been to take cognizance of the various outrages perpetrated in his state and throw himself into the fight as if he were an interested party. His condemnations were severe especially whenever there was a predilection to forego justice on the part of the officials. Threats, dire and ominous, were sent him that his course was hazardous, yet he faltered not in his purpose, and like a blood-hound, he scented down the violators of law; and the condign punishment meted out to many were through his untiring energy. In 1886 he received a note and a piece of hemp; the note informed him that in case he carried out a determination to enter a certain county he would be hung to the nearest tree. Mr. Mitchell replied in these courageous words: "There are no terrors, Cassius, in your threats, for I am so strong in honesty that they pass me like idle wind, which I respect not." Mr. Mitchell was born of slave parents in Richmond, Virginia, June, 1863. He was born a slave, although he is very evident that he saw nothing of slave life, slavery being a thing of the past ere he came upon the stage of action. In politics he is a radical—and anti-slavery, and perhaps not regarding the Republican party as infallible, yet he would have to see the party in a very correct condition before he would raise his voice against it. Still were it race or party, we firmly believe John Mitchell would not hesitate to say race first, party afterward. Marshal Ney, the celebrated Frenchman, was called by the soldiers of the French army, the bravest-of-the-brave from this circumstance: When Friedland was being stormed in 1807, Ney was in command of the right wing of the army; so dauntless was he in passing up and down the line issuing orders that Napoleon exclaimed: "That man is a lion!" Just so have the confers of Mitchell, because of his fearless disposition, nicknamed him the "Fighting-Negro-Editor."

Quite a surprise was created by the calling of Rev. A. Binga, Jr., D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church of Manchester, Va., to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Petersburg, Va., better known as the Harrison Street Baptist Church. This call was as much of a surprise to Rev. Dr. Binga as it will be to his many friends and admirers. His name was used with his knowledge or consent and at this time has an unconsidered call from the First Baptist Church of Jacksonville, Fla., the largest colored church in that State, having a parsonage said to have cost $5,000 when erected.

REV. A. BINGA, D. D., RECEIVES ANOTHER CALL.

Virginia Determined not to Lose Him.

At a regular church meeting of the Harrison St. Baptist Church Monday night, 25th inst., Revs. Wm. Gray, J. M. Young, of Norfolk; G. M. Crawley, of Manchester were the leading candidates.

Mr. R. J. Smith placed Rev. A. Binga, Jr., D. D., in nomination, as he stated, without Rev. Binga's knowledge or consent. Mr. Thomas S. Hamlin seeing the condition of affairs seconded it and the members voted to call this able divine.

Never has any church acted wiser and wiser we must say that we cannot afford to lose the Rev. Dr. whom we have always regarded as belonging to Richmond. We suspend an expression of opinion until we hear from him.

We will say, however, that Harrison St. Church has done the State a lasting favor in dissipating what we regarded as a possibility of his going to Florida.

Rev. Moss' Energy.

Rev. W. M. Moss, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lexington, Virginia, is soliciting funds and will erect a commodious brick building. Since his stay here, he has made the most creditable progress and is thoroughly beloved by the people among whom he has cast his lot.

THE ADDIE M. JOHNSON CONCERT.

She Carries the House by Storm.

The Addie M. Johnson concert was given last Monday night at the 5th St. Baptist Church. "The Maid of the Skiff" was well sung by John H. Grimes.

"Life's Dream is O'er" was sung by Mrs. T. N. White and W. Isaac Johnson. It was a combination of sweet melodies, and gave general satisfaction.

"With her faults I love her still" was splendidly sung by Mr. M. Sydney Mayo. His voice like Mr. Johnson's is rich in its tone.

Upon the appearance of Miss Addie M. Johnson, she was greeted with applause, and sang with charming sweetness "Waiting."

The selection from H. M. S. Pinafore was very fine. Edward Clay cut a handsome figure in the attractive captain's uniform of H. M. S. Pinafore. His voice was never heard to better advantage, while J. M. Jasper as Dick Deadeye was a decided success, the pipe, the blackened eye, the hump on the back, the limp made realistic the rendition.

"O Restless Sea" was sung by Miss Addie M. Johnson, supported by John H. Grimes and Mrs. T. N. White.

W. Isaac Johnson sang "The Accent on." He enunciated his words so that all could be thoroughly understood, and the piece being humorous it was highly enjoyed.

"Little darling, dream of me" was sung by Willie Hickman. His voice was well suited to the piece sung, and awakened memories of its old time sweetness.

J. H. Grimes sang with success "Committed to the Deep." His voice is fine.

Miss Addie M. Johnson sang "Dear Heart." This was excellent.

"The song that reached my heart was sung and upon being encored again she sang with exquisite expression "Down on the Suance River."

"Take me back to home and mother" was sung by W. Isaac Johnson, supported by Messrs. Jasper, Grimes, Clay, Hickman and Mayo. It was well rendered.

Miss Nannie B. Jones gracefully presided at the piano.

The entertainment was a success. Miss Addie M. Johnson, the prima donna, demonstrated that she was well worth the honor bestowed upon her. Her travel in foreign countries has added to the charming excellence of her voice. It is elastic and capable of accomplishing the most difficult evolutions in music. Everyone should hear her.

J. M.

MITCHELL—Died Saturday, Aug. 16th, Mary M., the beloved daughter of Sarah Mitchell. Her funeral took place at the First Baptist Church, Monday, August 18th. Rev. J. H. Holmes, officiated. He delivered a pathetic discourse and spoke in glowing terms of the deceased. She had been a teacher in the public schools of the city for two years. It was her delight to train the minds of the young and she was in turn loved by all her pupils and not only by her pupils but loved by all who knew her.

She was a great sufferer, but bore her sufferings with christian fortitude. She was conscious of her death and before dying she sang the hymn, "Oh! what a Savior that He died for me," and asked those around her bedside to help her sing it. Her funeral designs were numerous and costly, especially the pillow given by the teachers of the school at which she taught.

The casket was cloth covered, with heavy fringed curtains, draped with cord and tassels, silk handles, mounted with silver.

The pall bearers were: honorary, Wm. Mundin, Beverly Turner and Wm. Ferguson; actives, George Stephens, Wm. P. Burrell, Les Jones, Walter Burrell, Eddie Clay, Channing Carter, Eddie Harris and E. A. Randolph.

She leaves a mother, three sisters and two brothers to mourn their loss.

Precious loved one she has left us, Left us, yes, forever more! But we hope to meet our loved one, On that bright and happy shore.

—Miss Amy Plummer has returned home after six years' stay in Washington. She is the guest of Miss Louisa Boze. She expects to visit her grand parents in Goochland. When she returns she will make Richmond her home.
